

Uzbekistan Airways held its first on-site seminar in Bukhara

2024 6 May

Uzbekistan Airways continues its step-by-step efforts to improve the quality of service for flights operated from airports in Uzbekistan and abroad. In order to ensure effective interaction between structural units and prompt resolution of issues arising during flight servicing, the practice of holding regular field seminars for the airline's management staff was resumed.

The seminar held in Bukhara city was attended by the Chairman of the Board of Uzbekistan Airways JSC, heads of departments, divisions and services, directors of structural subdivisions of the national air carrier and representatives of the airline in the regions.

Within the framework of this meeting the issues of improving the quality standards of ground service, organization of interaction between departments in the implementation of the Hajj-2024 program, creation of more comfortable conditions for passengers and ensuring a high level of flight safety were discussed.

The participants of the event noted that holding such seminars on a regular basis will allow managers to interact with each other more effectively, jointly discuss plans for the airline's development, as well as share experience and help each other to promptly resolve operational issues.
